

Rather Rot in Prison, Than Have the U. S. Recognize Soviets

Dr. Weston B. Estes Begged Secretary of State Hughes to Withhold Endorsement of the Russian Government.

URGED WARSHIP DISPATCH TO PETROGRAD TO COMPEL RELEASE OF AMERICANS

BY HARRY L. ROGERS
Staff Correspondent I. N. S.
(Copyright 1921, I. N. S.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—Writing from his cell in a Soviet prison in Moscow, Dr. Weston B. Estes, who with five other Americans has arrived safely in Reval, begged Secretary of State Hughes to let him "rot in prison," if recognition of the Soviet government by the U. S. was to be the price of his liberty, it was learned today.

Estes suggested that warships be sent to Petrograd to compel the Soviet authorities to release his companions before they died of starvation and ill-treatment, but insisted they were all resolved to starve rather than consent to have the United States negotiate with the Bolsheviks for their release.

Emphasizing the bad faith of the Bolsheviks, Estes urged Secretary Hughes to have no diplomatic dealings with them. "These people could talk the leaves off the trees," he said, adding that if he were in the place of Secretary Hughes he would "tell them in diplomatic language 'to go to hell.'"

Publication of this letter as well as others written direct to the State Department by Captain Emmett Kilpatrick of the Red Cross, has been withheld until today through fear of the consequence to the writers should the Bolsheviks authorities learn of the appeals.

These letters, which furnished Secretary Hughes with indisputable evidence of the sufferings of the Americans, were largely responsible for the direct demands upon the Moscow authorities, which have just resulted in the release of the Americans.

Estes wrote his letter on June 23rd, making several copies which he contrived to have smuggled out of prison and forwarded by different routes in the hope that one might reach its destination. In the letter he predicted that he would never be heard of again if it should fall into the hands of the Bolsheviks.

One copy of this letter came through in good time. It was conveyed across the border and delivered to an American diplomatic representative, who promptly cabled it to the State Department, where it arrived scarcely three weeks after it was written. Shortly afterwards, it was officially announced that the United States would have no dealing whatsoever with Soviet Russia so long as the Americans were held, and officials let it be known that new and more vigorous measures were being taken to accomplish their release.

Not satisfied with the progress being made through the efforts of neutral agents, the State Department soon afterward made a direct demand upon Moscow for their release.

In his letter, Estes described the sufferings of all the Americans from lack of food and clothing, and from the indignities to which they were subjected. He told of the illness of Captain Kilpatrick, who he feared would not live beyond the Fourth of July.

Soviet officials came to them constantly, he said, offering to alleviate their condition if they would attempt to persuade the United States Government to open diplomatic negotiations, but they told their captors they would rather rot in prison as they were than be a party to any such transaction.

Some of the Soviet officials attempted to convince them that Lenin and Trotsky were already in negotiations with the Washington government, but the Americans refused to believe them.

Dr. Estes is a dentist by profession and is known both in New York and Washington. He saw service abroad during the war. Being of an adventurous bent, after the armistice he took a moving picture operator and travelled through the Balkan states and some of the territory contiguous to Soviet Russia making films. He was successful and conceived the idea of going into Soviet Russia to film some of the history-making developments in the interior.

Information as to his movements after crossing the Russian border is sketchy, but it is known that he was arrested soon after entering Russia and imprisoned by the Soviet authorities.

Sinn Fein To Talk Peace On English Terms

De Valera's Letter to Premier Lloyd George Says He is Ready to Negotiate

DAIL EIREANN TO MEET

Sinn Fein Parliament to Hold Important Session Next Tuesday

BY DANIEL O'CONNELL
Staff Correspondent I. N. S.
DUBLIN, Aug. 12.—Eamonn De Valera's letter to Premier Lloyd George informed the premier that the Sinn Fein parliament (Dail Eireann) is ready to negotiate for peace upon the English terms agreed today.

Dail Eireann will meet next Tuesday.

The communication, so far as could be learned here, does not request the release of all the Sinn Feiners now detained in prison or detention camps. The Republican leaders are conscious of the fact that such a demand probably would precipitate a breakdown of the negotiations.

Frank P. Walsh, of New York and Kansas City, who arrived here yesterday, has become a man of mystery. Cornelius Sullivan, a New York lawyer who accompanied Mr. Walsh, occupied Walsh's hotel room as a "decoy" while the latter dined with Sinn Fein leaders and afterwards attended a secret conference of Republican chieftains.

The Sinn Fein leaders were optimistic today over the peace situation. Arthur Griffith, president of the Sinn Fein, called at Mansion House. Griffith refused to divulge the contents of the Sinn Fein communication, but declared that "everything is going very well."

Art O'Brien, head of the Irish Self Determination League, and so-called Sinn Fein ambassador to London, formally denied reports current here that Eamonn De Valera's reply includes a demand for amnesty.

"It is obvious however that such procedure improve conditions under which the negotiations are being carried on," added O'Brien.

The Irish office states that there are about 7,000 Sinn Feiners imprisoned or interned. The government has taken no action regarding their release.

In Irish office circles belief was expressed that the recent trip of De Valera to Cork was to make an effort to pacify the extremist element in that district which has been growing restive. The Cork Republicans have been grumbling over the delay and threatening to renew hostilities thus endangering the negotiations now proceeding between Dublin and Downing street.

The Freeman's Journal is commenting today upon the latest Irish peace developments took a pessimistic viewpoint.

"Premier Lloyd George is making a stand upon the Upper Silesian question upon the basis of self determination," said the newspaper. "If he would only do that in regard to Ireland the question could be quickly and satisfactorily settled."

General Sir Nevil Macready, commander of the British military forces in Ireland is enroute for London from Dublin to report to the government.

Jake Hamon's Child Parades With Band

By International News Service.
CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—When Chicago's new Woman's Band gave its initial concert recently there were few persons in the audience who knew that the pretty little girl who gave a xylophone solo was Olivebelle Hamon, daughter of the late Jake L. Hamon, killed by Clara Hamon, whose act, subsequent flight, capture and trial was a national sensation.

Olivebelle, who is only eleven years old, is a musical prodigy. In addition to playing the xylophone, she is an accomplished violinist and snare drummer. She is the best of the twenty-five drummers in the band, according to the director.

Mrs. Hamon, wife of the late oil millionaire and national Republican committeeman from Oklahoma, is living in Chicago now for the sole purpose of educating her daughter in music. Olivebelle is studying the violin at the Chicago College of Music. She was in the Woman's Band, which number 200 pieces when that organization led the parade opening Chicago's Pageant of Progress.

The University trustees still have to formally release General Wood, and it is understood that he will be given a leave of absence for a year, during which time he will direct the affairs of the Philippines.

Secretary Weeks said the report of the Wood commission, which has investigated Philippine affairs will be brought to the United States by W. Cameron Forbes.

Penrose Back In Cell After Funeral

Doylestown Slayer of Brother Returned to Jail at Ogontz

KISSED COLD CHEEK

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., Aug. 12.—Norman Penrose, of Ogontz, slayer of his brother, Ralph, wept and murmured a plea for forgiveness as he knelt beside the dead youth's casket in their father's home at Doylestown yesterday, and with his arm around his brother's neck, kissed the cold cheek of the dead man.

Norman, in prison at Ogontz since the fatal quarrel over a telephone bill last Monday, was taken by Deputy Police Chief Fenimore to the house of his father, Samuel J. Penrose, 323 South Main street, Doylestown, shortly before 9 o'clock in the morning. It had been his constant plea that he be allowed to attend the last rites over the brother who had been his "pal" for years, and whom he killed at the end of a violent fist fight in which he had been bested.

Norman Penrose, pale and haggard, evidently trying to hold his emotions in check, was received with great kindness by his father, his stepmother, and his eldest brother, Cyril. Only close relatives of the family attended the services at the house, the pallbearers all being cousins of the dead man.

The body, clad in a dress suit, lay in a beautiful mahogany casket with trimmings of massive silver. Candles burned at the head and flowers were banked in the room. Conspicuous among them was a wreath bearing the legend "From Norman."

Though Norman bore up well during the ordeal of the brief service at the house, it was easily seen that the strain was very severe. A physician attended the funeral in case Norman should collapse.

The most dramatic moment was when Norman took leave of the body. He was not to go to the high mass of requiem, which was held in the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, Doylestown, and the moment he knelt beside the coffin was the last time he was to see the face of the man he had slain. On the cheek and forehead of the body were marks or the combat between the brothers which it was impossible to obliterate.

Norman, with Fenimore and Dr. Felix Murphy remained in the father's home when the funeral procession started for the church. There, lying on a catafalque before the altar, the lid of the casket was lifted once more, so that the hundreds of friends of the family who filled the church might look at the dead body.

Miss Elizabeth Connard, who had mothered the two boys while they lived at her aged father's house in Ogontz, came up to the coffin and slipped her arm beneath the dead boy's neck, raising his head and kissing him on brow and lips.

James Coyle, 53 years of Lebanon Independent Borough, slashed his throat with a razor and died before he could be removed to the hospital.

Murder Case on Docket for the September Term

Pete Nasko Will Plead Self Defense in Killing Compatriot

STABBED HIS ANNOYER

Outcome of Quarrel Among Foreigners at Rockhill

The September term of Civil Court at Doylestown will be enlivened by another murder trial.

"Pete" Nasko, of Rockhill, Bucks county, today is in the county prison.

He was given a preliminary trial this week by Justice of the Peace John A. Funk, of Quakertown, charged with the murder of Andy Koten, aged 39, of Rockhill. Both are foreigners and were employees of the General Crushed Stone Company, Rockhill.

According to statements made to Coroner Howard P. White, of Doylestown, by Mrs. Koten, wife of the man, at the time of her husband's death, there is evidence that Koten had been drinking heavily.

Mrs. Koten said that her husband was brought home drunk on the night of July 16 and dumped in the front of the house. He immediately started a quarrel with "Pete" Nasko and later struck Nasko over the head with a piece of iron used as a stove lifter. Nasko, it is alleged, ran across the lawn and Koten followed. When he caught up with Nasko, the pursued man is alleged to have stabbed his pursuer with a pocket knife.

The wounds were dressed by a doctor and it was not at first believed that Koten's injuries were serious. The wound became infected after some days requiring an operation at the Grand View Hospital Sellersville. Koten died ten days later.

It is believed that a plea of self defense will be entered by Nasko's attorney.

Navy Officers Will Lose Their Soft Berths Ashore

By International News Service.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—More than 1,500 navy officers will be affected by a plan shortly to become effective, whereby all personnel at shore stations will be cut to the bone to provide for personnel to man new ships, it was learned today.

Under this plan the personnel required to man all offices and stations ashore will be reduced on a fixed basis, and this basis will be adhered to in detailing officers and men to shore duty.

All temporary commissions will be cancelled by December 31, 1921, under existing law, it was stated. This means that a large number of officers holding advanced rank will be reduced in grade to their permanent ranks, and others will be returned to reserve status.

Former Bristol M.D. Read Learned Paper

Dr. William Martin Edified Members of County Medical Society

TOPIC 'BLOOD PRESSURE'

Dr. William Martin, of Atlantic City, N. J., formerly a practicing physician at Bristol, delivered a masterful address to the members of the Bucks County Medical Society Wednesday afternoon. The meeting was held at Sellersville, in the Grand View hospital. Dr. Martin's topic was "Blood Pressure."

The former Bristol physician has made an exhaustive study of his subject. He spoke with authority and the discourse was a scientific one and much appreciated by the attending physicians.

Dr. Martin now has a large practice in Atlantic City.

The Bristol physicians attending the meeting in Sellersville were the following:

Dr. J. Fred Wagner, Dr. Howard Pursell, Dr. James Collins, Dr. Frank Lehman, Dr. Joseph deB. Abbott, Dr. Arthur L. MacKenzie, Dr. Irvin M. Bush, Dr. Harvey D. Webb and Dr. Charles S. Abbott.

Dr. Frank Lehman is president of the society and he presided at the meeting on Wednesday.

The physicians were shown about the Grand View Hospital, which is a community institution. It was instituted by the doctors in that section six years ago. It is located upon a sunny hillside commanding a very fine view of the surrounding country.

The recent drive for necessary funds for the institution netted $45,000. The hospital is doing a large amount of restoration work.

After the scientific discussion of the meeting the physicians dined at the Washington House, where thirty-five guests enjoyed a bounteous meal.

Floating Butt May Be Part of Gun That Slew Broker

By International News Service.
LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 12.—Search for the stock of a double barreled 12 gauge shot gun, believed to be part of the much sought weapon with which J. Belton Kennedy, wealthy young broker, was slain a week ago was occupying the attention today of all officers working on the mysterious murder case.

With the indictment on first degree murder charges of Arthur Burch and Mrs. Maelynn Obenchain, principals in the sensational case, investigators were endeavoring to forge the ground the links in the chain of evidence. The missing gun stock is regarded as an important link in the chain.

Mrs. Obenchain and Burch were named in indictments returned during the night after a grand jury investigation that began early yesterday.

The butt of the shotgun, which officials say they believe is the weapon that sent its charge of death laden buckshot into the brain of young Kennedy a week ago, was found floating in the surf at Santa Monica last Saturday about sixteen hours after the murder had been committed. The butt was taken from the water by William Wylie, a conductor. In a sworn statement made public today Wylie asserted that the butt was

Fired Farmhouse When Kept From Following Plow

Boy Admits Theft and Arson Because Farmer Blighted Ambition

HE WANTED TO PLOW

Bound-out Lad Displayed Ingratitude to His Forgiving Benefactor

A fifteen-year-old youth has been taken into custody by State Police at Tincum township, charged with arson. The lad has been lodged in the Bucks county jail and today calmly tells why he fired the farm house of his former guardian.

William Daughenbaugh, of Altoona, was placed on the farm of John Geetz, of Tincum township, by the Children's Aid Society.

On arrival at the farm, he expressed a desire to operate the plow, but Geetz thinking him too young, would not permit him to do it.

Geetz's refusal angered the boy, and he now admits that he conceived a desire to get revenge. His first move in this direction is the alleged theft of money from Geetz. The theft was detected and the boy forgiven by his benefactor. He still held malice and later seized an opportunity to set fire to the house by placing wood saturated with kerosene in the parlor and applying a match.

The youth in the Bucks county prison at Doylestown now admits to the State Police that he stole money from the house and wanted to burn down the building to cover up the theft.

He also said he did not like his home because he had to do hard work and was not allowed to plow.

He was charged with arson and will await a session of the Juvenile Court.

RETURN OF THE SOLDIER DEAD

The return of the body of John J. Nocito, one more of Bristol's hero dead, creates another scene of patriotic and pathetic interest in Bristol.

Other soldier dead are being brought back to native soil. The friends who have desired the return of these remains will perhaps find some comfort in the proximity of those last relics. The people will be glad that no effort or expense was spared to give this bit of satisfaction to those who made so great a sacrifice.

The bodies of those who remain in the foreign soil which they so nobly freed of the brutal invader, will not be forgotten. They rest in "fame's eternal camping ground," with a multitude of noble heroes.

It is a day of many sad memories when the last rites are said at the little home burial grounds where the soldier bodies finally find their last resting places. Yet perhaps the bitterness of grief has passed away so that the friends of these dear boys can feel the honor that comes with the tragedy.

These young men achieved the highest triumph of life. Nothing that they could have accomplished in seventy years of ordinary living could compare with what they did in those few short months. They will be remembered forever as the saviors of their country, as the men who showed their ability to rise above pain and sorrow and peril and fear and to attain the highest level of nobility.

Any family that is represented in these quiet cemeteries by one of these boys, has a right to feel proud of the contribution it has made to the progress of the world. It has given the highest gift in human power, and it should be cherished forever in a special place of honor in the community. Our people in Bristol should not forget the boys who have made this sacrifice, nor the sorrowing ones left behind, but show the survivors by constant sympathy and friendship how much this service is valued and treasured.

HEROISM AT SEA

Scores of fear-conquering deeds of rare and impressive heroism featured the rescue of the terrified passengers from the steamer Alaska off the coast of California. Seamen and landlubbers, men and women, vied with one another in preventing panic and saving lives, and, according to accounts of the perilous adventures, there were a dozen persons or more whose exceptional bravery entitled them to medals.

Least dramatic but most effective and resultful of all the exploits were the perfect self-control and calm behavior of the captain and the stewardess in enforcing discipline among the excited passengers.

As soon as the boilers of the vessel exploded, Mrs. Grace A. Campbell, the stewardess, opened door after door along the deck, cautioned women and children to don life preservers and assemble at the rail, and quietly assured them there was but little danger if they would remain cool. Capt. Harry Hobey, speaking through a megaphone, commanded passengers and members of the crew to obey orders. "I am going down with the ship," he said, "but, if you do what I tell you, nobody will go down but myself." The captain allotted the passengers among the life-boats, encouraged the crew, and was still at his post when the ship sank in the cormorant sea.

It is the noblest kind of gallantry which exhibits total lack of fear and complete mastery of self in a sudden disaster and overwhelming emergency. It is the valor which springs not from lack of fear, but the sublime and dauntless bravery which deliberately suppresses all consideration of self and firmly overcomes every inward and outward sign of fear. The calm, sacrificial courage of the intrepid captain was scarcely more gallant and hypnotic than that of the thoughtful stewardess. The faithful and calm performance of duty by this man and woman, at the critical moment, preserved the discipline and confidence which saved the lives they held in trust.

Yet, the millions who read with breathless pride and admiration of Capt. Hobey's stolid heroism wonder why it is that he, like every other officer of his rank, felt that it was an obligation on him to go down with his ship. That the captain should save his passengers and not desert his ship is an old traditional and binding precept of the chivalry of the sea. It should suffice, however, for the captain to save the passengers. It should not be considered glorious or necessary for a hero to give up his own life to fulfill a sentimental ideal of valor.

DECLINE OF RADICALISM

The number of radicals, popularly known as Reds, in the United States, is estimated at 310,000, as compared with 400,000 a year ago, and the membership of the I. W. W. has declined from 74,000 to 50,000. Sixteen per cent. of the radicals are I. W. W., and Reds are only approximately three-tenths of one per cent. of the total population. One person in every 350 is a radical. Most of the 310,000 misanthropists are foreigners.

Failure of communism in Russia and the unemployment in this country are assigned as the cause of the recent decrease of radicalism.

Though the foregoing estimates and conclusions of an agency which incessantly watches the buzzing colonies of malcontents and revolutionaries are doubtless true, there are indications that unemployment has rather fanned and spread than cooled and reduced general discontent.

Radicalism itself is undeniably due to ignorance, either total or partial. Partial ignorance, which implies some learning of some kind, is the type which generally breeds the revolutionary sentiment, as the little learning is a chaos of incomplete ideas, formed in a pernicious environment and based on alluring and erroneous theories. The communism of Russia, for example, is the extreme theory of the inexperienced and slightly read persons who lived exclusively under the despotism of an absolute monarchy, and who had not learned, from history or by logical ratiocination, that socialism also was tyranny in the form of centralized bureaucracy.

In America radicalism is one of our lesser problems. It will meld with republicanism. Our serious problems are to inculcate fairness in the policy of capital and the methods of labor, and to bend our efforts toward keeping courts, legislatures and all the agencies of government just, impartial and worthy of respect and confidence.

HUMAN INTEREST ITEMS
GATHERED ABOUT TOWN AND ITS PEOPLE

Midsummer has never been a popular period of the year. Very few poets ever dragged their verses on July and August into newspaper offices. Spring and Autumn have their respective celebrants, and those seasons seem to awaken lyric emotions in the hearts of imaginative people. But midsummer is popularly regarded as a period of excessive heat, flies, mosquitoes and other disagreeables.

The student of nature, however, finds no season of the year more rewarding than July and August. Then nature seems in her high tide of fruition. Every bit of vegetation has reached its full perfection. It lacks the touches of decay that accumulate in the early fall.

It seems the very prime of life of nature's year, when she is creating the most abundant growth. A July sun may scorch the tender inhabitants of cities. But the country people take it cheerfully, for they know that it is ripening their products.

It is a pleasure to travel through the country at this period. Nature produces no more wonderful sight than a waving field of grain at the height of its fullness. The yellow and shimmering surfaces of the wheatfield seem the carpet of a golden eldorado, and no hand of man ever created so soft and poetic a color. And the glistening green of the cornfield, what artist in textile fabrics ever formed anything half so wonderful? Verily the people who coop themselves, in towns when these gorgeous colors, painted by the hand of God, are revealing themselves on the face of nature, know but a little fraction of the loveliness in which the world unfolds her heart at midsummer.

There is a great deal of this beauty to be seen within 100 miles of Bristol and our people should enjoy it to the full.

OBSERVATIONS

Some of these folks who are tarring and feathering people, won't find anything so soft as feathers to lie on when they get into jail.

The ice man and soda fountain people show a sublime indifference to hot weather, similar to that manifested in cold weather by the coal man.

Being urged to show initiative and enterprise, many people have developed new and ingenious ways of getting money out of the public treasury.

Women are urged to learn to swim, but they do not seem to need any urging when the summer resort men offer to teach them.

"Trying to Save Children Lest Russia Go Completely to the Devil"

By REV. F. F. KOMLOSY, Russian Patriot

We have a school at Tuzla, Anatolia, near Constantinople, which is being enlarged as rapidly as circumstances will permit. The course of study is patterned as much as possible after the English school system, although the teaching is done by a number of highly educated Russians under English supervision.

Our pupils number at present about 200. They have been separated from their parents, and half of them have no idea where their parents are living at present.

This may seem harsh until you understand the conditions that are existing among the Russians. Morally, Russia is dead. Mentally, she has fallen into decay. The condition of the present adult generation is so appalling that parents are scarcely fit to have charge of their own children.

The gap in the children's lives is becoming wider every day and consequently harder to bridge over. The result is everywhere so apparent that it is a matter of urgency to save the coming generation, lest Russia go completely to the devil.

The Growth of Advertising

The Second of a Series of Editorials Showing How Advertising Has Increased During the Past Few Years.

The people who have gone on to big success in retail trade have usually been generous advertisers. The average big city department store appropriation for publicity is based on volume of business. The amount spent in advertising usually varies from two to five per cent. of the total amount of sales.

A big business keeps computations showing the amount of space each department in its store takes, and the expense of the advertising is considered a charge against that department. A failure of any department to get an amount of business proportionate to its amount of advertising is considered to be some one's fault. Commonly, it is the fault either of the merchandise or of the man who wrote the advertising. Rarely is it charged up against the medium in which the notice was placed.

A department store will frequently find that it can cut out its overhead expense by increasing its advertising appropriation. A typical instance was given by a large store in Indianapolis. This store increased the amount of money spent in local newspapers during 1919 by 60 per cent. But the increased advertising brought in 94 per cent increase in business for the year. The result was that the percentage of advertising cost to sales was cut 4 1-2 per cent to 3 1-2 per cent.

With all the examples of great businesses built up as a result of advertising, it seems strange that there is one single merchant left in the country who feels that he can neglect this means by which others have gone on to fortune.

John Wanamaker took in $24.67 the first day he was in business. He kept 67 cents for change, and spent $24.00 in newspaper advertising. In so far as the merchants of Bristol have some touch of the genius that pushed Mr. Wanamaker ahead in the business world, they will make advertising the foundation of their system.

A MAN FOR THE AGES

A Story of the Builders of Democracy

By IRVING BACHELLER

Copyright Irving Bacheiler

One evening, while E. D. Baker was speaking in the crowded village courtroom above Lincoln's office and was rudely interrupted and in danger of assault, the long legs of Honest Abe suddenly appeared through a scuttle hole in the ceiling above the platform. He leaped upon it and seizing a stone water pitcher defied any one to interfere with the right of free speech in a worthy cause.

So it will be seen that there were zestful moments in these sundry vindications of the principles of Democracy in the prairie capital.

About this time Miss Mary Todd, the daughter of a Kentucky banker, arrived in Springfield to visit her sister, Mrs. Ninian W. Edwards. She was a

There is a passage in the diary which illustrates the character of Douglas and Lincoln's knowledge of it. The passage relates to a day in the famous debates of 1858. Lincoln had not reached Havana in time to hear the speech of his opponent. A great crowd had come by train and in wagons. Taking advantage of his absence, Douglas had called Lincoln "a liar, a coward and a sneak," and declared that he was going to fight him.

Lincoln heard of this and said in his speech:

"I shall not fight with Judge Douglas. A fight could prove nothing at issue in this campaign. It might prove that he is a more muscular man than I, or that I am a more muscular man than he, but this subject is not mentioned in either platform. Again, he and I are really very good friends and when we are together he would no more think of fighting me than of fighting his wife. Therefore, when the judge talked about fighting, he was not giving vent to any ill feeling, but was trying to excite—well, let us say, enthusiasm against me on the part of his audience."

Justice accomplished her ends now and then with comic displays of violence in the prairie capital. One night Abe Lincoln and certain of his friends captured a shoemaker who had beaten his wife and held him at the village pump while the aggrieved woman gave him a sound thrashing. So this phase of imperialism was cured in Springfield by "hair off the same dog," as Lincoln put it.

fashionably dressed, good-looking girl of blue-gray eyes and dark hair.

"Well, Mary, haven't you found the fortunate young man yet?" Mr. Edwards playfully asked the day of her coming.

"You know, my husband is going to be President of the United States and I hoped that I would find him in Springfield," Mary answered in a like vein.

"There's great fishing here," said Mr. Edwards. "I know the very man you are looking for. He has come up from the ranks and is now the most popular member of the legislature. He can make a stirring speech and they say he is going to be the President of the United States. He's wise and witty and straight as a string, but a rough diamond—big, awkward and homely. You're just the girl to take him in hand and give him a little polish and push him along. His name is Abraham Lincoln."

Speed knew the Todds. When he called upon Mary she asked about Mr. Lincoln and said she would like to meet him.

"She's just the girl for you, Abe," Speed said to him that evening. "She is bright and well educated and her family has influence. She could be a great help to you."

This interested the member from Sangamon county, who was indeed eager to get along. The companionship of a refined young lady was the very thing he needed.

THEATRES

New Colonial Theatre

Nature plays a big and dramatic role in "Wolves of the North," the Universal photodrama which comes to the New Colonial Theatre tonight. The trackless snow, the glowing Aurora Borealis, gale-driven ice—all of these atmospheric touches have been added to the picture by Norman Dawn, a leader among artistic and creative motion picture directors.

The story features Eva Novak, who achieved notable success in "Wanted at Headquarters" and "The Torrent." Her beauty and dramatic force add materially to the appeal of "Wolves of the North." And the noteworthy feature is Dawn's use of natural scenery to suggest emotion.

"Human emotion," said Dawn recently, "is closely paralleled in its manifestations by the various phases of nature. Sunlight glinting on a turquoise sea is just as exhilarating as Mendelssohn's Spring Song. Gaunt pines fringing an ice-locked lake; racing black storm clouds and the drawing in of night over a desolate parts in 'Lead Kindly Light,' and some of the magnificent hymns by which the ordinary mortal assures himself of safety and solace in his loneliness."

Dawn's theory is well presented in "Wolves of the North" by awe-inspiring scenic backgrounds.

Chance To Get A Pair Of Newark Shoes For Nothing

The Newark Shoe Company, whose local store is located at 231 Mill street, is this week trying a new wrinkle in advertising by giving away free a pair of Newark shoes to the holder of a lucky number ticket.

These tickets are given out in the store each week. The drawing is held on Fridays, at 12 noon to 1 p.m. The holder of the number drawn, if present, will be presented with a new pair of shoes.

Mr. Diamond, the local manager, stated yesterday that the demand for the tickets was very great. Last week was the first week for this innovation. The chance to get a new pair of the high-grade Newark shoes absolutely free is attracting many persons to the store.

Cornwells Weak and Third Ward Strong

Local Team, in Fine Fettle,
Shut Out Short Hand-

ROPER RIGHT THERE

The Cornwells Team came to Bristol last evening minus several of its players and only furnished good practice for the local Third Warders.

One of the ardent local rooters declared, however, that the result would have been the same had Bolden's Hill-dale, or Connie Back's Athletics, been the opposing team. Ted Roper had speed, curves, control and everything else needful last night, and Manager Fred Clark had every man on the team keyed up to the highest pitch. Result, Third Ward 9, Cornwells 0.

The nearest the visitors came to scoring was in the opening inning. Elbersen, the first batter, hit safely to right field. After Hagney fanned, Heins hit to Hagerman, whose throw to McGerr forced Elbersen. But for McGerr's wild throw to first, a double play would have been made. Comley hit safely to left field and Lewis was hit by a pitched ball. With the bases loaded, the best Black could do was a weak grounder to Roper. Afterback singled in the second inning, but after that Roper retired the side in one, two three order.

Black, the former Merchant Ship pitcher, was easy for the local team. Hetherington, the first man to face Blackie, bounced a hard drive off Comley's shins and, by hard sprinting, made two bases. Barton hit to right field. Both scored when Valentine's hot grounder got away from Heins. Valentine stole third and scored a moment later, when Afterback made a poor return to Black.

Eleven batters faced the visitor's pitcher in the third inning before the side was retired. McGerr started with a two-base drive. Hagerman's short fly, back of second, was muffed by Heins. Harper, Butler and Roper made safe hits. Two bases on balls and Brown's error of Valentine's long fly gave the local six runs.

Brown's one-handed catch of Hetherington's hard drive in the fifth inning was easily the fielding feature.

Places Motoring Pleasures Within Reach of Everyone

Local Manager Belson, of the Bristol Motor Sales, which handles the well-known Chevrolet car in this vicinity, announces the inauguration of an easy payment plan of an original nature.

The initial payment demanded on cars of all makes sold on time-payment is usually prohibitive to many who desire to own cars. The monthly payments set have also been so large as to discourage many persons.

According to Mr. Belson, however, his company is going to try out a plan of delivering cars to customers for $200, with weekly payments of $10 a week thereafter until the purchase price is paid.

The plan brings motor cars down to within the degree of availability that phonographs have and greatly increases the number of persons who can afford them.

The Chevrolet management and Mr. Belson are taking a liberal action which will undoubtedly be appreciated by many persons who have longed for cars. It is an effort to place the pleasures of motoring within the reach of almost everyone.
